June Is Men's Health Month

This month, we're shining a light on the importance of men's physical and mental well-being. It's a time to raise awareness, encourage early detection and treatment, and promote healthy habits that support long-term wellness. Whether it's scheduling a check-up, prioritizing mental health, or simply making time for self-care, small steps can lead to big changes.

NHP Staff Highlight: Community and Member Engagement Specialist

Bekkah Abeyta

Born and raised in the heart of Denver, Bekkah grew up in a lively family of six and has called the Mile High City home for most of her life. She studied Peace & Justice, Sociology, and Women & Gender Studies at Regis University, where she developed a deep passion for community engagement, design thinking, and reproductive health. Bekkah's career has taken her across educational settings, healthcare systems, and community spaces—from working at Planned Parenthood and Denver Health's school-based health centers to supporting students and families across Colorado and even launching her own consulting business. No matter the setting, Bekkah brings a heart for creative solutions, collaboration, and making sure community voices are front and center. Outside of her work, Bekkah loves playing pickleball, traveling and picnicking with her partner, friends, family, and her adorable cow-pup, Arlo.

Fun Fact: Bekkah's been vegan for 11 years and is a master at reinventing her favorite family recipes—her vegan flautas, focaccia and bizcochitos are everyone's favorites!
